

Dean's Weekly

Department of English and Philosophy

8 August 2012

Past Event

As part of our outreach to the Army and continued collaboration with the Center for the Army Profession and Ethic (CAPE), Department of English and Philosophy faculty members provided input and feedback to two Army publications which are expected to be released to the Army in 2013. LTC Brian Imiola provided input to Army Doctrine Reference Publication (ADRP) 1-0 which will augment ADP, 1, The Army. ADRP 1-0 is designed to define and doctrinally describe the Army Profession and Ethic and to provide the foundation for Army training and education on the Army Profession, its Ethic, and the character development of its members. Dr. Melissa Bergeron provided feedback on TRADOC Pamphlet 525-3-7, United States Army Human Dimension Concept. This pamphlet describes and provides a guide for how the Army will use the human dimension as a common framework for adapting and preparing for future operational environments. Collaboration with CAPE continues to be a focus for the department's outreach to the Army and as a developmental opportunity for our faculty.