

Dean's Weekly

Department of English and Philosophy

7 December 2011

Past Event

First-class cadets enrolled in the department's Senior Seminar (EP433) presented their capstone projects in various venues during the past week. These projects marked the culmination of a semester's worth of work centered on the concept/archetype of the investigator. Cadets put their own investigative skills to work in a wide range of creative projects including modern dance, a one-act play, an analysis of the impact of internet use on deep learning, and a study of the concept of time. Some of the presentations are highlighted in the images below.

CDT Liz Schmitt, Literature: "Going Through The Motions"

CDT Adam Barsuhn, Philosophy: "Google: The Searching World"

CDT Kelley Duke, Literature: "Becoming Penelope"

CDT Jaron Howell, Philosophy: "An Investigation of Time"