The Allied strength in Dresden was down to approximately 200,000 because of severe losses on the march and various detachments to secure the army's line of retreat. 31,000 Prussian troops absorbed in besieging fortresses. 53,000 Russian troops absorbed in besieging fortresses. 27,500 troops occupying these garrisons. 36,000 troops stationed in the Austrian Interior. 30,000 troops stationed on the Danube. 13,000 troops occupying miscellaneous places. 23,500 troops garrisoning the Austrian fortresses.