Burnside considered himself to be in general command at the left wing, entrusting command of his corps to Cox.